

WANT PIPE LINES REGULATED BY LAW

Oklahoma Senators Bring Independent Oil Interests to President's Attention.

ASK FOR LEGISLATION TO FACILITATE OUTPUT

Opposition Develops in the Senate to the Administration's Anti-Trust Program.

Senators Owen and Gore, with a delegation of Oklahoma men interested in the oil business in that state, today talked for half an hour with President Wilson in his open-air tent about including in the pending anti-trust bill provision that oil pipe lines shall be regarded as common carriers and come under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. The Oklahoma senators discussed the subject with the President last week, and had an appointment to see him again today. All the President's visitors today were received in his open-air offices.

The legislation sought is declared to be necessary protection of independent oil operators against discrimination at the hands of pipe line owners, particularly the Standard Oil Company. The charge is made that the Standard is arbitrary as to the amount of oil belonging to independent producers that it will carry over the lines, and that only a small percentage of the product of the independents is transported, the owners taking good care of their own interests.

Would Impose Requirement.

The Oklahoma men are thoroughly agreed that all pipe lines should be required to declare themselves common carriers before they are permitted to operate, and that a government bureau of oil statistics should be established which will make it possible to obtain definite information concerning the oil supply aside from the figures supplied by the corporations. Senator Gore stated that as matters now stand the independent producers are often unable to get their oil to market because the oil lines insist they have not sufficient capacity.

The President showed sympathy with the visitors in the facts presented to him, but did not commit himself.

Opposition to Trust Program.

On the subject of trust legislation a situation has arisen that tends to show that there is considerable opposition to the trust measures going through the Senate at this session, and well informed senators declare that if the President insists upon his program the proposed amendment of Congress July 15 will be delayed at least a month and probably two months. There is no doubt, however, in the minds of those who keep track of the President's purposes that he will not waver in his determination to continue Congress in session, unless satisfactory legislation on the subject is enacted.

Details of trust legislation were discussed with the President today by Representative Stevens of New Hampshire and Louis D. Brandeis of Boston. While some of the features of all the anti-trust bills being introduced are identical, the talk especially touched upon the proposition for an interstate trade commission, which is a member of the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce, has a bill of his own, which he had before the committee, that differs considerably from the Covington bill reported by the committee.

Provisions of Stevens Bill.

The Stevens bill would confer upon the trade commission greater powers than it has under the Covington measure. In one instance it would give the commission the right to prohibit unfair and oppressive competition by conferring upon it the authority to report to the courts cases of corporations refusing to submit to the methods of investigation proposed by the commission. The kind of commission proposed by Mr. Stevens would be beyond the jurisdiction of the courts conferred by the Covington bill.

The visitors disclaimed the truth of a report that they had sought to have the Stevens bill substituted for the Covington bill, merely saying that they gave the President as much information as possible on all matters pertaining to trust legislation.

It is understood that no effort will be made to amend the Covington bill in the House, but when the bill reaches the Senate Mr. Stevens and those who think he does will seek to have the Senate amend the bill by increasing the powers to the trade commission. They wish to get the support of the President for the amendment when the Senate takes the bill up.

Mr. Covington at White House.

Representative Covington, the author of the trade commission bill, which now has the support of the administration, also conferred with the President today.

Members of the Cleveland baseball team, now playing in Washington, were received by President Wilson today. He wished them luck in their games for the rest of the season.

"GEN." COXEY TO SPEAK FROM CAPITOL STEPS

"Gen." Jacob S. Coxey of Massillon, Ohio, who marched into Washington yesterday afternoon, is to speak from the Capitol steps tomorrow at noon. Permission for the speech was granted to "Gen." Coxey today by Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall. Coxey had sent a letter of request to them from Frederick, Md., while en route to this city, and today he went to the Capitol and received their assent.

While "Gen." Coxey was making arrangements for his speech tomorrow, his wife and two children were sightseeing. His "army" of eight which came into Georgetown yesterday afternoon, is now being housed in a building which is a part of a livery stable on M street near 33d street, where their outfit is quartered.

Unlike his stay in Washington several months ago when he appeared before the committee on banking and currency, "Gen." Coxey, with his family, is now stopping at a rooming house in here he was a guest at the last appearance of "Gen." Coxey, however, he wants to be with his "army" and therefore took up quarters in Georgetown.

Will Break Camp Tomorrow.

Shortly before 11 o'clock tomorrow morning "Gen." Coxey and his "army" will break camp at the livery stable and start on their march to the Capitol.

Following the speech on the Capitol steps, the "general" and his followers will be quartered in Washington. Just what is to become of the "army" following the demonstration here is not known. One member, however, declared today that he is going to return to Massillon, Ohio, with the mule, pony and carriage. The others desire work, and say they will remain here if they can obtain employment.

His first speech after arriving here was made by "Gen." Coxey last night on Wisconsin avenue near M street, and was listened to by several hundred persons.
